

The Courage to Teach: On Becoming a More Effective Educator

Keynote: Dr Colin Jones, University of Queensland, Australia

Tuesday 7th November 2017, 10:00am – 12:00 noon

Room 137, Redmonds Building

LJMU's Enterprise Educators Academe is delighted to welcome back Dr Colin Jones, one of the world's leading Pedagogic experts on transformational learning and assessment. His area of research and teaching is in enterprise education and he is the leading published academic in this area with over 100 scholarly works including over 40 international journals. He is Visiting Professor in three Universities including China and has advised many international governments, the United Nations and the World Entrepreneurship Forum.

Colin will be focusing on helping staff become more effective educators in line with the Teaching Excellence Framework, how to achieve impact beyond the classroom both for the students and the University and researching and publishing on teaching impact for educators of all disciplines.

Winner of many national and international teaching awards, Colin is keen not only to highlight how excellent pedagogy can lead to sustained international success for a university and its academic staff but also to help educators at LJMU to apply these proven research-based pedagogical strategies.

His earlier keynote at LJMU in September 2015 played a key role in the success of the university LJMU Enterprise Educators Academe achieving impact and achieving national and international success as a pedagogical community of practice. He is committed to helping LJMU educators to develop further and to apply his new pedagogical models.
